Office for Sustainability Education

University of Utah

The EGG Fund Allocations Committee

The Allocations Committee has awarding authority over the EGG fund. A three-quarters (3/4) majority of the Committee's full membership is required to make funding decisions. Apart from his/her normal function as a part of this committee; a member has no individual authority.

Committee Members & Representation

It is the duty of the Committee members to review project applications and determine allocation of funds. The Allocations Committee shall consist of three students and four non-students, as follows:

Voting Members

- Three students, at least one (1) undergraduate and one (1) graduate Student with the option for the third to be either a graduate or undergraduate student
- One faculty member
- One facilities management staff member
- One health campus staff member
- One administrative staff member

A three-quarters vote by the allocations committee shall be required before project commencement. The EGG Fund Manager will not act as a voting member of the allocations committee

Member Guidelines

All Student members of the Allocations Committee must be registered (full or part-time) University of Utah students during their term of office. Students graduating before their allocation committee term ends are still eligible for committee membership, even though their student status may technically expire before the end of an appointed term.

Staff and Faculty members of the Allocations Committee must be current employees of the University of Utah.

Terms of Office

Member terms will last one full year from the date appointed and must seat at least two (2) committee meetings deciding project proposals.

Member Replacement

A Committee member may be removed by unanimous vote of the other Committee members for unjustifiable absence, conflict of interest or other appropriate reasons. In the event that a committee member is removed or resigns, the EGG Fund Manager will select a replacement. The new Committee member will serve the remainder of the original member's term